

WEAKNESS OF WAIVER RULE AGAIN ILLUSTRATED

WASHINGTON GETS COIN FOR WAIVER;
CHANGES NEEDEDPayment Shows Field for Graft—Another
Great Game.

By THOMAS S. RICE.

For the first time in several weeks Washington is not in the limelight of baseball politics today.

The last of the many cases, which attracted attention to this city, was settled yesterday when President John I. Taylor, of the Boston Americans, came here and paid President Tom Noyes, of the Washington club, a goodly sum to waive on Schlafly. The money was accepted and banked, and Boston is now expected to trade Schlafly to Toronto for Thoney, the fast outfielder.

President Taylor's action illustrated another possibility of the waiver rule as a hold-up scheme. Washington forced Boston to pay it money to waive on the player, but that apparently unorthodox action was taken because Boston had previously refused to waive when Washington owned him and had a chance to sell him for $1,800. Boston was made to take him for the waiver price—$1,000, and if Boston had then been allowed to sell him to a minor league, Washington would have been humored out of just $300, and President Noyes naturally declined. Then Mr. Taylor, who wanted Schlafly, not so much for his money value, but for trading purposes, gave Washington the $800 difference, and the incident was closed.

In this Washington-Boston squabble the work was open and aboveboard, and easily understood, but the fact that Boston had to pay to get a waiver might be remembered and used in the future by unscrupulous managers of clubs, who could shake down any club in the American League that had a man not quite good enough for fast company, but valuable in the minors.

Discussing the waiver rule and its weakness this morning, President Noyes said: "The defects in the rule are many, despite the fact that the raising of the waiver price to $1,500 a few days ago should have a tendency to stop the promiscuous asking and declining of waivers."

"The matter should be taken up at the meetings of the big leagues next winter and thoroughly threshed out. One suggestion I would make would be to compel a club that refuses to waive and is forced to take the player at the waiver price to keep him a month or six weeks before being allowed to ask for waivers in its turn. Major league salaries are generally of fair size and a club would not be so willing to risk having a high-priced but useless man on its hands as a result of too much freedom in refusing to let him get out of the league."

Washington stood the strain, stuck it out, and won from Cleveland here yesterday by 1 to 0.

Victory two days in succession by valiant deeds in the ninth inning with two out, it is the most encouraging report about the Washington baseball team that has come this year. One game like that of yesterday or the day before does more than two or three lopsided victories to encourage the fans and players, for it indicates that the team has recovered its nerve and confidence and is willing to fight until the last ditch.

Charley Smith and his slawwork were the great features yesterday. He pitched as good a game as has been seen in Washington in two years. Other Washington pitchers have held their opponents to even less than the total of six hits which Smith allowed yesterday, but seldom have they been so successful in getting out of tight places and in making their brains and experience such an important factor.

Smith's form yesterday was perfect, and was the principal subject of discussion among those who were replaying the game in their minds. He had speed, control, variety, confidence, and coolness. He has been a little late rounding into shape this year because of an accident that put him out of the running shortly before the team went on the first Western trip, but by his work yesterday is a sample of what he may be expected to do. This club will have a chance next spring to play somebody in the National League for the fifth place championship of the world.

But, in praising Smith, do not forget about the splendid pitching of Bernhardt. He was just about as good as the National League, and it was not his fault Cleveland lost; Bill Bradley's mental lapse in the ninth inning, when he held Anderson's drive instead of throwing it at once, was what beat Bernhardt, and the popular German comes out of the contest with every possible honor, except that of winning. In a way, Bernhardt was even better than Smith. In only two innings, the second and ninth, did Washington have men left on base. In only two other innings did Washington get men to first, and in both those a fast double play retired the side. It was a fine exhibition of how the national game should be played.

There were so many bright things by both teams that it is hard to remember them all. Especially good was the overhead running catch Altizer made off Stovall in the ninth inning, putting out the third hand for Cleveland. Perry Turner was on second at the time. Had Altizer not held the ball it is probable that it would have bounded off his hands and allowed Turner to score easily. This was only one of the many good tricks Altizer has shown in the past few days, and his work at short has been of a high order. His pivot throw on the nipping of Flick at the plate, trying to

WEATHER FAVORS
SUBURBAN CROWDSSunshine Presages Great
Attendance—Wonderfully Balanced Field.

NEW YORK, June 20.—With a rift in the threatening clouds which during the early hours of the day threatened to mar the event, Sheepshead Bay this afternoon will be the scene of one of the greatest gatherings of racegoers in the history of the American turf. The $20,000 Suburban Handicap—America's Grand Prix and Epsom Derby combined—the blue ribbon event of the thoroughbred world, is carded as the feature.

Seventeen thoroughbreds, the cracks of the country, are carded to go to the post, and unless a deluge should convert the track, which is now lightning fast, into a muddy lane before post time, at least fifteen of the entrants will probably parade.

Chance for Youngster.
"A handicap for three-year-olds and upwards," is the way the Suburban is rated, but in past years the event for the most part has been for "the upwards," but one three-year-old having landed the classic in the twenty-two years that it has been run. This horse was Africander who, in 1903, wrested the honors from Herbert after a terrific drive through the mud.

The twenty-third running of the race today is a distinct Suburban novelty in that the chief contenders will nearly all be in the three-year-old class. The wise men of the turf, who in former years have balked at the colts will be today forced to look well to the youngsters.

Not in recent years has the big classic offered a more open field as is indicated by the fact that some of the leading books will give 4 to 1 against any horse in the race. Superman, Electioneer, Montgomery, and Vell are four youngsters which will carry a good budget of the half-million dollars that will be wagered on the contest. But a little behind these in the public choice come Running Water, Beacon Light, Wexford, and Dandelion, and still those named do not constitute an exclusive circle from which the winner must necessarily be picked. Superman and Vell, the Keene entry, will very likely be the favorites. Superman is probably the best loved, with Mountain on his back, will give a good account of himself.

West Likes Montgomery.
But if Superman is the choice of the Eastern contingent the West is not without a strong contender, and thousands of dollars from west of the Alleghenies will go down on Montgomery, the formidible contender entered by Earl Herz, the Western plunger. Sandy, the young California jockey, who has been coming to the front rapidly, will have the mount on the Western. Second choice of the Westerners will be Wexford, one of the older horses, who with but 106 pounds up, should prove a lively contender.

Of the jockeys who must be considered marvelous, Miller will have the mount on Running Water. Radtke will pilot Dandelion, and W. Dugan will endeavor to land the money on Nealon. With a maddy track he will stand a chance.

stretch a triple into a homer, the day before, was absolutely perfect.

Ganley got into the limelight again with a fine running catch of Lajoie's low fly in the sixth.

For a man with bad props, Charley Hickman is cutting a big figure at first.

NO MORE FOOTBALL FOR NORTHWESTERN

CHICAGO, June 20.—One year's test of no intercollegiate football at Northwestern University has proved so satisfactory that President A. W. Harris says the same policy will be continued and the game will probably be banished from the college forever.

Alumni back in Evanston today for commencement week heard this statement following a meeting of the university trustees, to whom President Harris made a report. It showed that the attendance had increased over last year, instead of diminishing, as had been feared.

FREDDY WEEKS WINS.

DENVER, June 20.—Freddie Weeks, of Cripple Creek, last night got the decision over Jimmy Walsh, of Boston, in a ten-round "go" at Denver Athletic Club.

BRITON PROVED RATHER SLOW.

While Summers did not show the form the crowd expected, the fast pace as developed by Erne had considerable to do with this. It takes a mighty class boxer to show in six rounds against Yl, and as Johnny is not of the quick order on his feet he was made to look ponderously slow in comparison to Erne. With another bout against Summers, it would have been fast enough to have suited the majority of the fight fans.

The rounds rolled down to a nicety were as follows: The first and second were about even, neither man doing much of the sensational order. In the third and fourth rounds Erne, while in the fifth and sixth Yl clearly and decisively showed his superiority. In the preliminary bouts Yankee Schwartz had something on Frankie Barsch, but Harry Walsh, of Boston, Golden, while Alf Wicks and Jack Rardin broke even in a six-round affair.

S.S.S. NATURE'S TONIC

Every one should take a tonic in the Spring; their systems require it. The blood has become thick and sluggish with the accumulations left in the system from the inactive, indoor life and from the heavy, rich foods of the Winter season. The blood, being in this unnatural and disordered condition, is unable to furnish the body with the increased amount of nourishment necessary for the more energetic life of Spring and Summer, and the system suffers from debility, weakness, nervousness, indigestion, loss of appetite, and many other unpleasant symptoms of a disordered blood circulation. When the system is in this run-down and disordered condition it is not safe to take unknown concoctions, sarsaparillas, compounds, etc., because they usually contain potash or some other equally strong and harmful mineral ingredient, which acts unfavorably and often, dangerously on the depleted, weakened system at a time when it needs gentle and natural stimulation to throw off the impurities and recuperate its lost energy. S. S. S. is appropriately called Nature's tonic. It is made entirely of roots, herbs and barks from the great storehouse of forest and field, selected for their purifying and health-restoring qualities, and as it does not contain the slightest trace of mineral in any form it is perfectly safe for young or old. S. S. S. acts directly on the blood, ridding it of all impurities and poisons, and restoring the lost properties of rich, nutritive strength so that it is able to supply the system with the healthful, invigorating energy needed to pass this trying season of the year. Its action is the most pleasant, prompt and satisfactory of all tonics, and those who feel the need of such a medicine will do well to commence the use of S. S. S. at once. S. S. S. restores lost energy, relieves that tired, worn-out feeling, helps the appetite, aids digestion, and adds tone and vigor to the system.

TREASURY SCORES
ANOTHER VICTORY

Treasury won its seventh consecutive victory in the Departmental League yesterday, downing Commerce and Labor by 3 to 2. The game was brimful of interest, and the fielding was at times sensational.

The Laborites made a desperate rally in the ninth inning, and came near winning. They had three men on bases and only one out, but Shoemaker was hit by a batted ball, and Rule's hot grounder was whizzed over to first by E. Helaski in time to catch the runner.

The game scheduled for today between Postoffice and Navy will be played at Marshall Hall.

YOUNG ERNE WINS;
SUMMERS IS WEAK
AROUND THE BODYBritish Boxer Loses
Speed and Shows Poor
Headwork.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 20.—Young Erne, trained down fit as the proverbial fiddle, was too clever, fast, and aggressive for Johnny Summers, the English crack, last night, and in the six-round session before the National Athletic Club the "Yl Yl" representative from Gray's Ferry shone to particular advantage.

He had all the best of Summers after the third round, as after stopping a few blows on the stomach the Englishman speed which the Briton displayed during the first rounds of the fight went to a glimmering last night. Erne never let up once he had secured an advantage over Summers, and on more than one occasion it looked as if the Englishman was slated to go the voyage before the sixth round was announced.

Erne Kept After Him.

Erne's method of fighting was a decided surprise to the crowd. When it was announced from the ringside that both men had agreed to fight until ordered to break, the wise ones quietly began to figure on the Briton coming out on top. Summers' punch, which nearly caused the undoing of Tommy Murphy a few weeks ago, was what caused the critics to figure him winning, but the Erne party upset all calculations by not only mixing it whenever he had the opportunity, but also kept persistently after Johnny, with never a let-up until the finish.

Erne, instead of resorting to that devastating left jab which previously won most of his bouts, paid strict attention to Summers' stomach, and with a swinging left and right series of punches got home several wallop on Johnny's tender spot to decided advantage in the fore part of the bout. These punches seemed to do more to upset Summers than anything else, as the Englishman, in order to get away from the blows, would invariably clinch or hold to save himself.

Summers Has Poor Head.

But Summers never let up a second in his desire to fight back. He kept coming all the time, sometimes getting home the wallop which made Erne wince, and then jabbing pretty lefts to the face which sent Yl's head back in an impressive manner.

But he lacked judgment in covering up and backed by good ring generals Erne was given the proper instruction just what to do in the coming round when the bell announced the minute's rest.

And following these instructions to the letter, Erne never had any trouble to find the weak points of his opponent. He kept shifting his attack continually, not getting home a stiff left to the face following with either a swinging left or right to the body and then rushing the Briton over the top.

Erne was keeping guessing all the time by this everlasting shifting process and in his anxiety to keep from being out of the ring at times he forgot the idea of being aggressive.

Southern Railway sprung a surprise in the Capital City League yesterday by defeating Aloysius, 4 to 3.
